The fetal pig (Sus scrofa) belongs to the class “Mammalia”, the same class to which man belongs. The gestation period of the pig is about 115 days and the fetal pigs are approximately 30 cm in length at the end of this period. Mammals are vertebrates having hair on their body and mammary glands to nourish their young.

Fetal Pig Dissection Background: Mammals are vertebrates having hair on their body and mammary glands to nourish their young. The majority are placental mammals in which the developing young, or fetus, grows inside the female's uterus while attached to a membrane called the placenta. The placenta is the source of food and oxygen for the fetus, and it also serves to get rid of fetal wastes.

Pig (Sus scrofa) developmental model is studied extensively due to the commercial applications of pigs for meat production and for health issues such as obesity, cardiovascular disease, and organ transplantation (xenotransplantation). Historically, there is an excellent description of the pig reproductive estrous cycle and the cyclic changes that occur within the ovary.
