Thomas Jefferson acted as attorney pro bono in two Virginia legal suits for freedom by enslaved mulatto children, both of which he lost. In Samuel Howell v. Wade Netherland, April 1770, Jefferson unsuccessfully argued that not only had Howell's grandmother been a white woman but "under the law of nature, all men are born free." Samuel Howell lost his case in the 1770 session of the General ...

Most federal education laws focus on broad matters such as civil rights and free speech. But education is primarily controlled at the state level, including how public schools are funded; relations with teachers' unions; and state university systems. In Virginia, for instance, school is mandatory for children ages five to 18 (with certain exceptions).
